

I understand that the banking industry is trying to have the privacy no call list ammended to allow them to call on their existing customers with the intent to sell new products and services. This would defeat the whole purpose of signing up to be on a "no call list". I don't know of anyone that wants this to happen other than those of the Banking industry.